

NEPTUNE OPPOSITION NATAL SATURN

Oppositions are said to bring disputes and struggles that we are to learn to overcome and often suggest that some of these issues stem from outside ourselves and are generated from others. At the very least, others will be involved in the equation. Oppositions, although usually challenging, provide information and valuable lessons by learning to find resolutions to the issues.

The planetary energies of Neptune and Saturn are quite opposite to one another. Neptune can be vague and uncertain and create an illusionary potential that may be hard to see or spot. You want to believe the best in things but sometimes there can be deceit or we may hide our head in the sand preferring not to have to deal with any type of adversity.

Saturn insists that you see things as they are and does not like change or disruption to what is considered the norm. Saturn is reality at its peak although it can also entertain negativity and cause great worries because of its focus and challenges.

You should question what is real and what is imaginary under this influence. Much will depend on the houses involved in the astrology chart as this will provide you with clarity on what areas of life are involved.

Stability and a secure foundations are the later benefits after you have worked your way through the lessons this aspect can present.

You may find that you are questioning your outlook and viewing life from a vantage point that is not overly sound at this time, but this too will pass. You will be more aware of your train of thought as time goes by.

Make sure you see things as they truly are. You will, however, sway back and forth from reality to rose colored glasses during this aspect's peak when Neptune is directly in Opposition to your Natal Saturn.

With Neptune Opposition natal Saturn utilize the energies to formulate a realistic action plan for the long haul. Beware of deceit and deal with issues head on. Push to find a resolution to the challenges at hand.
