

NORTH NODE IN VIRGO

If your North Node is in Virgo, your South Node is in Pisces. The house positions will determine what area of life is highlighted during this lifetime.

The nodes are always 180° in separation. They are also known as the dragon's head (North Node) and the dragon's tail (South Node). The North Node has energies similar to Jupiter and the South Node has energies like Saturn. The North Node is more favorable than the South Node when contacted by transiting planets or making aspects to the natal positions.

When the North Node is in Virgo, there is a lot of processing taking place. This is due to Mercury's influence, the ruling planet of Virgo. Following the direction of the energies of the North Node in Virgo, life is tied to detail, service-oriented activities and the need for perfection. Service is a big part of what this life leans towards. You are here to assist, and although at times this may seem tedious, you truly want to help.

You are here to learn that helping others actually helps you. Although you see all the potential flaws in what you do, understand that nothing is perfect, at least to the level you may want. You are good at putting things in order although you might not like doing this as it can be trying to set things up only to find later that things have shifted. You like the tried, tested and true. You are here to learn compromise, however, as the North Node is unfamiliar and not an easy route to follow. It is new and untested, and therefore, it is subject to potential failures (which are only lessons if viewed properly).

The workplace can also be tedious, and co-operation will have its limits. You are in a position, however, to do that work and to find comfort in trying to create harmony and calm if there are ingredients within the work environment that need to shift. You are here to service the needs of others but can use your intuition and innate feeling nature, which stems from your South Node's positioning in Pisces, to find ways to assist those in need.

You are here to learn about positivity and productivity.

The South Node in Pisces suggests that spiritual evolution comes natural to you. This may be as a result of a previous incarnation, if you believe in reincarnation. Previously you were here to attend to selfless service, understand the workings of the subconscious and to gather information linked to spiritual advancement not just for some but for all. (These characteristics come naturally to you, whether they are innate or if you believe in reincarnation were learned in a previous lifetime). In this lifetime, you can use some of these elements that you have brought forward or come naturally to you to assist others in maintaining a sense of self-worth and a place where the faults that they find within themselves, just as you do within yourself, can be addressed in such a way that it fosters growth through life's experience and is not viewed as a failure or weakness.

The North Node in Virgo suggests a life of service, to put things in order for the benefit of the whole, not the self. Look to the details, forget perfection and strive to enjoy your contributions.
