

JUPITER OPPOSITION NATAL URANUS

Transiting Jupiter takes approximately one year to move from one sign to the next. This Opposition will affect those involved for roughly one month depending on whether Jupiter moves into its retrograde cycle while in contact with Uranus. You can use an orb of 5-7° approaching and 2-3° separating.

Jupiter in aspect regardless of whether it is a favorable aspect or not usually has ramifications that over time are positive in nature. The only exception may be contact with Saturn, while in challenging aspect.

Jupiter represents growth and expansion, often bringing with it good luck and opportunities. The transit of Jupiter is often what we wait for as it brings good fortune and opportunities for learning lessons of great value.

Uranus is about change and awakening to new potentials. Its energies are often sudden and unexpected; however, it moves us to where we need to go.

The houses involved with the aspect will be of extreme importance because they are the areas of life that will be highlighted.

The Opposition (180° of separation) is often considered challenging and brings to light other people's influence and suggests that their opinions or recommendations may be contrary to our own. Other people may also stand in the way, holding us back or interfering with our plans.

When it comes to this aspect (Jupiter Opposition Uranus) we may find that those individuals involved are worth listening to and may in fact provide information needed. The information, however, may not be welcomed by us although needed at the time.

Jupiter will bring ideas or situations that are somewhat exaggerated and perhaps brought into focus when we least expect them. This aspect can shed light on a different approach or offer advice that we may not have thought of ourselves. Because of this influence, we may hesitate to move forward in the suggested direction. We need to review the situation at hand and make a judgement call, while listening to advice from those involved.

This can surely be challenging because we may have made up our mind on a different approach to take. Others may disagree with our next move or tell us to wait things out and not to jump into situations without knowing where we are going. They may try to put a stop to what we want to achieve or stand in the way of what might appear new and exciting opportunities. We must weigh things out before jumping and although things seem to be moving rapidly or unexpectedly in a certain direction, we need to listen to what others are saying before we make decisions.

With Jupiter Opposition natal Uranus opportunities are at hand. Growth can be expected and a new unexpected way forward may present itself. Leaving something behind or making significant changes can lead to new opportunities and growth that are not in view at the moment. Advance with some caution but move into the direction of choice after doing your due diligence.
